Behavior treatment - is a specialized treatment modality utilizing behavioral principles in a structured manner as directed and monitored by a mental health clinician trained in behavioral intervention techniques. Intrusive or restrictive techniques are overseen by a Behavior Treatment Review Committee as described in the Behavior Treatment Review Committee Manual.

IV. POLICY:

It is the policy of CMHOC to establish a Behavior Treatment Review Committee (QI Committee) that shall be maintained to review intrusive or restrictive behavior treatment plans and psychotropic medications prescribed for behavioral control purposes, whether developed by CMHOC operated or contracted programs, and to educate staff regarding behavior treatment issues, as specified in the Behavior Treatment Review Committee Operating Manual.

It is the policy of this agency that behavior treatment techniques are implemented in a manner that fully protects the dignity and rights of the consumer. And that:

- Consumers are treated in the least restrictive setting that is appropriate to their needs;
- Interventions are never used simply for the convenience of the service provider;

- Every reasonable effort is made to allow consumers to build the skills necessary to be served in the least restrictive settings possible; and that
- Emphasis is placed on the use of positive treatment practices.
- All interventions are based on the most effective behavior treatment methods available.
- No program will be approved that contains any technique prohibited by law, including aversive techniques, physical management, seclusion, or restraint.

V. PROCEDURE:

The CMHOC Executive Director or designee shall have administrative responsibility for assuring that this policy is implemented, as specified in Chapter I, "Administrative Responsibility," of the Behavior Treatment Review Committee Operating Manual.
